Dear Chris:

It may or may not resolve the matter. Given you have said the witnesses can choose to appear voluntarily or not, I understand you to be agreeing that the subpoenas are of no force and effect. The subpoenas must be formally withdrawn, however, including because they have been filed on the court docket. If defendants will not file a notice of withdrawal, please let me know immediately so we can proceed with motion practice to quash the subpoenas in a timely fashion.

Best, Carolyn

Dear Ms. Lamm: There is no need to file a motion to quash because we will not be seeking to enforce the subpoenas. The witnesses can choose to appear voluntarily, or can choose not to. I trust this resolves the matter. Best
- Chris
